THE STORY OF NATE

Story of Nate (J. David Hawkins tells a version of this story often to illustrate the Social Development Strategy):

I would like to tell you a story about a 7 year old boy named Nate. In school, Nate is not one of the good kids and he is not one of the smart kids. In fact, Nate often doesn't do his homework and doesn't always follow the rules in the classroom.

Looking for a way to engage Nate, his classroom teacher (Ms. Carter) decided to give him an opportunity to take care of the classroom pet, a gerbil. When she offered this chance to Nate, he seemed surprised—but accepted.

On Monday morning, Ms. Carter explained to Nate how he should take care of the gerbil, and showed him where to find all of the supplies. On Monday afternoon, Nate carefully fed the gerbil, but Ms. Carter noticed that he had not also given the gerbil water.

On Tuesday, Ms. Carter went over the steps for taking care of the gerbil with Nate again. The rest of the week, Nate took very good care of the gerbil! She noticed that he was following all of the steps and checking on the gerbil often.

The following Monday, the teacher mentioned that Nate had taken very good care of the gerbil last week, and asked the students to notice how healthy and happy it was (running around on its wheel in the cage). She asked them to give Nate a round of applause for taking such good care of their pet. All of the kids clapped and Nate felt really good about himself in that moment....he also felt pretty good about his classmates and his teacher.

That day, the teacher gave a reading assignment. She told the class that reading was an important skill and that she wanted them to do well in school and in life.

Well.....do you think that Nate did the reading that night? YES!!!
